Nowadays, in England, tea is quite the most popular, and also the cheapest, of all drinks. People drink their tea in different ways. Some like it with sugar, some without. Some drink it with milk, some with lemon; yet, one way or another just about everyone drinks tea. This, however, has not always been the case. During the last century, when tea was very expensive, it was kept locked up, and the lady of the house had the key. Tea drinking then was quite a ceremony, reserved for the evenings. At breakfast everyone drank beer!

Complete the sentence according to the content of the text: Compared with the past, in England today _____.

- A. tea is very cheap and commonly available
- B. more and more people prefer tea to beer
- C. tea is regarded as a luxury

- D. sugar is becoming less and less popular
- E. people don't care about the quality of tea

Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart's world was a world of music from the moment he was born. His father, who was a fine musician, was teaching his daughter to play the piano. Little Wolfgang used to listen to his sister as she practiced. He quickly learned the pieces she played. One day he said he wanted to play too. But he was only three years old then, and his father thought that his hands were too small. However, that evening, alone and in the dark, he played the pieces his sister had been practicing and he played them much better than her.

Complete the sentence according to the content of the text: Mozart's father didn't believe that _____.

- A. a child of three could possibly play the piano
- B. his daughter practiced often enough
- C. his children would ever learn to play well
- D. music could be regarded as a profession
- E. children could understand music well
